STAFF REPORT

From Las Vegas to Reno, Pahrump to Wells, Nevadans are coming together this weekend to learn more about Barack Obama, his campaign, and how to get involved.

On Saturday, Obama supporters around the state plan to hold "Community Kickoffs." Obama plans to attend an Iowa community kickoff that will be streamed live on a campaign Web site to events around Nevada and the country. The events will also feature a video biography of Obama, a call to community action, and information about the campaign, organizers say. Through a combination of supporters signing up online and through the campaign staff, community kickoffs will take place in homes, coffee shops and other gathering places. Teachers, students, union members, retirees, and small business owners are taking part by hosting events in Nevada. In Reno at noon Saturday, Billy and Doris Howard plan to host an event at 1515 Sutter Brook Way, organizers say.
